Preface

Since writing my first book on prayer five years ago, I've discovered that if we are to fully cooperate and follow the prayer-teachings of our Lord, He needs our minds plus our imaginations.

If we could only be as little children, we could respond to God without fear, and learn to pray with one another as a means of communicating love. Communication lines need to be opened and to be kept open. Only when they are, do life and personality assume deeper meaning.

I would like to express my appreciation to Floyd W. Thatcher, Zondervan Publishing House, for his constant encouragement during the time this manuscript was being written.

To Major Carol M. Williams, United States Air Force, I am especially grateful for giving valuable time to editing this manuscript (as well as one of my previous books). Major Williams taught me, by example, the meaning of hard work and good craftsmanship in writing. Though our viewpoints sometimes differ, the lively discussions over topics in this book fostered clearer thinking and more explicit writing.
