University Defense Education

Source: The Napoleon Revolution, Robert Holtman, 1967

The Imperial University decree of 1808 laid down the bases of teaching. Among them was:

- Fidelity to the Emperor, the imperial monarchy, and the Napoleonic dynasty.

MOTHER MARY: The student at the University of Fontanes is taught the Napoleonic rules in society. It would admire and in essence worship the emperor.

It is not what the United States would model. We would note this short excerpt from what is anti-fascism that you might see that the loyalty is not to a military commander as Napoleon but in the values of the Threefold Flame: LOVE, WISDOM, POWER or FAITH, HOPE, CHARITY.

We would substitute the words "humanism" with "Threefold Flame" that you might see this relevance.

RELEASING
HUMANISTIC THREEFOLD FLAME
VALUES

Many people have entered the Eighties with new commitments to moral and esthetic values. Late in the 1970s, a Harris poll revealed a significant value shift. People were asked basic questions concerning the stress they would place on alternative approaches to values, rewards, interpersonal relations, and living standards. Opinions were reported as follows:

- Learning to appreciate human values more than material values: 65%
- Finding more inner and personal rewards from work: 64%
- Spending more time getting to know people better on a person-to- person basis: 77%
- Teaching people how to live with basic essentials: 79%

- Finding ways to create more jobs for producing more goods: 29%
- Increasing the productivity of the work force: 26%
- Improving and speeding up our ability to communicate with each other through better technology: 15%
- Reaching a higher standard of living: 17%

The God who saves us will not descend from the machine; he will arise once more in the human heart. The Threefold Flame.

MOSES: What you are defending in the way of life is of the Ten Commandments. It is the law and order of which governs the nation to be at the level of social intercourse that is time-honored reality.

Marquis Fontanes: Napoleon rewrote the laws in what is called the Napoleon Code that resembles more Islamic law or civil code than common law or common sense.

NOSTREDAME: He furthermore did replace the pope with himself. And while that may seem not much of a change to you of merely seeing one man be replaced by another man in an office, what it did was to remove Christianity as the State religion and France has not yet recovered considering the amount of lawless drug use that followed in finding truth in reason under drugs as reality whereas the reality before Napoleon was scripture-based before that time.

Nancy of Oregon: An example would be learning who is the "accuser of the brethren" in which Jesus Christ taught in Revelation. So that when you find that someone seeks in extortion to take from you what is not given to the thief, you call for their judgment before Cosmic Council. This is the law.

EMANZIANDIE: Divine law perhaps, however, it is human law also. It is reality. And scripture to be called scripture are those laws that pass the test of time.
