

Reality Check

Humanism

Q: What would the future hold for us should humanism be the religion of the United States?

Book: The Arrogance of Humanism, David Ehrenfeld, 1978

Our world is being swamped and sunk by a religion-gone-mad humanism. Humanism is the “religion of humanity,” a supreme faith in our own ability to both rearrange the world of Nature and engineer our own future in any way we see fit. Secure in the misguided faith that humans can do anything with the aid of reason, science, and money, we re dismantling and discarding everything upon which human survival and happiness depend, including: our knowledge of the limits of the human mind and body, [God given rights not to be thrown to the lions, syringed, castrated, jeered and cannibalized in the military by NATO], our families and small communities, our best agriculture, our control over our energy, our fellow species and ecological systems—even the meaning of our language.

We have constructed a life and society too complex for us to control— now and in the future. In the shambles of human culture, the forces of pure reason, long-range planning, and progress are playing a dangerous game of denial and bluff: a denial that we face insoluble and worsening problems, and the bluff that only a little more time, money, and cooperation [with the UN and NATO] are needed to make everything all right. But in fact, the humanist premises are irreparably faulty, and modern humanist society is therefore beyond repair.

From this perspective, Marxism, NATO, UN, liberalism, and [godless] capitalism, despite their different intentions, are part of the same destructive process, sharing the same hidden assumptions of human power and control, and relying to the same extent on the failed hope of organization.

As you practice the rosary, you see that you are distinctly divine. It is not true as Thomas Jefferson said, “All men are created equal,” rather you have God-given rights. What will change is if you yourself recognize you have the God-given right not to be thrown to the lions.

I once used the word “street smart”. I was immediately surrounded by both ALPHA and another Ascended One. And ALPHA said to me, “Don’t you ever use that word again “street smart”! There is nothing smart about street smart.”

It was a burner.

ANDREA of Chicago: Your being an imbecile is that you learn from what you hear.

NOSTREDAME: You do not learn from history as you shortly will read from what George Washington says.

What is not understood by the police everywhere is how is it that J. Edgar Hoover can think like this, that there are criminals, and in particular, organized crime, that you must gun down with no questions asked.

It is this quote.

In a court setting it was said, “The criminal syndicate here as the Mafia has revealed an arrogant challenge to the government and to the decent people of this country.”

This is an arrogance that is so uniquely here. It is the loud talker in public places, and the decent citizen says nothing.

It is a tenet of witchcraft that “I never make mistakes. If I am found to have made a mistake, I am to act arrogant and kill my opponent.” The arrogance is what makes one person superior over another. And of this day, how about we try to see what arrogance looks like?

George Washington: You have to learn from your mistakes. NAFTA was a huge mistake! Nowhere in history do you find that a nation survives without a balance of the exports and imports.

GOD SHIVA: NAFTA assumes that all men are created equal and that is clearly not true. Red China kills on the urge to solve emotional problems. The divorce policy they have is to kill the other. The senior policy is they are killed and robbed and this is customary. What is customary is not only not challenged or changed ever in Red China, it is honored and respected and time-honored. The pedophile situation of the Vatican Church is time-honored customary and you cannot expect changes except that you keep as a separate people and have nothing to do with these.

As Moshe said for you to do, you say, “You are cruel and sadistic. Get out of my face.”

SAINT DIANE: It is not possible to continue as we have to tolerate the insurgents in this country especially since NAFTA. They tear down the customs that were built by the hard work of the Americans under the American Century by Harry Luce.

GOD HELIOS: And this is not a melting pot. Rather, the People need to assert the National Standard and that we will not go below this!
